

*So You Want to Sing SpiritualsAppendix 4 – Song Literature Classification

My mother and spirituals are so deep inside of me, it's difficult for me to find words that are meaningful. Spirituals are a part of whatever I am. When I sing them my being sings them, not my throat. When I think of my mother, I think of when she caressed me, when she loved me, when she was teaching me at the piano, when she was giving me a whipping, when she was bathing me, when she was putting me to bed, and when she was kissing me good night. It is very difficult for me to put into words something that is at the bottom of my very being. My mother and spirituals both belong there.¹

Chapter 6 discusses the concert spirituals available in various vocal music anthologies. Many of the anthologies listed below contain solely spirituals, but all have at least one concert spiritual selection. There is more bibliographic information--including complete spirituals listings--about each anthology available in Appendix 5.

SONG CLASSIFICATIONS

This list of concert spirituals has been classified in one of the categories referenced in Chapter 6: sorrow songs; songs of consolation and faith; songs of resistance, defiance, and deliverance; songs of jubilation and triumph, songs of judgment and reckoning, songs of regeneration, songs of spiritual progress, and songs of transcendence. Each entry the opening lines of the spiritual's text, scriptural references—if available—and the code(s) for the anthologies where the entry may be found.

Please note that the texts below come from different sources and may not match the texts in your musical scores, especially if the score text is in dialect.
